

Become a Network Member—It's Free!

The National Network of Libraries of Medicine has two levels of membership, giving all health information providers access to the many benefits the Network has to offer.

Full Membership

Full Membership is open to any health sciences library or health related information center that:

- Is regularly staffed
- Has an Internet connection
- Has its own collection of current health sciences materials (books, journals [25 minimum], audiovisuals, and electronic databases)
- Provides information services, including collection sharing through the DOCLINE system, for health professionals and/or the general public

Affiliate Membership

Affiliate Membership is available to any library or any information/resource center that is called on for health information by its users, but does not meet all of the criteria for full Network participation.

What's the Catch?

Membership in the National Network of Libraries of Medicine and all of the benefits of membership are FREE. All we ask is that members designate a contact person for their library, keep their contact information up-to-date, and provide basic information on their collections and services. That's it!

Benefits

Network Members receive a variety of benefits and services, including:

- Eligibility for grant funding for health information access and other projects.
- Access to a variety of training opportunities for librarians, health professionals, and consumers.
- The opportunity to partner with other health sciences libraries or health-related information centers.
- Access to DOCLINE, the interlibrary loan system used by health sciences libraries.
- Periodic mailings of posters, brochures, bookmarks, and other publications.
- The opportunity to provide input on regional NN/LM programs and services.
- Access to the latest information through various regional electronic discussion lists, the Plains to Peaks Post quarterly newsletter and other resources.
- A certificate recognizing NN/LM membership.
